

ROY LORRENS ODHIAMBO

Learning Strategist | Host - AR-EL Podcast | Author - Chasing Ayana

Roy Lorrens Odhiambo is a learning and development professional, content creator, and storyteller passionate about translating ideas into practical knowledge that empowers individuals and organizations.

He currently serves as a Learning and Development Officer at Basco Products (K) Ltd, where he plays a key role in strengthening organizational performance through strategic learning initiatives. His work focuses on performance management, employee onboarding, training and development coordination, and the continuous review and improvement of HR and organizational policies.

Roy is also the host of AR-EL Podcast, a platform dedicated to meaningful conversations around leadership, strategy, human growth, and the stories behind professional journeys. Through engaging discussions with professionals and thought leaders, the podcast provides insights that bridge everyday experiences with leadership and personal development.

Beyond his corporate work, Roy is an author and the writer of the book Chasing Ayana, a reflective narrative exploring human relationships, growth, and purpose.

Roy is known for his creative approach to problem-solving and his belief that systems and ideas can always be simplified and improved. Rather than accepting existing norms, he enjoys rethinking them; bringing fresh perspectives that drive culture change, learning, and innovation.

By combining strategic thinking, storytelling, and education, Roy creates impactful content that informs, inspires, and connects with audiences.
